

2F: Observe & Analyze 2

Lindsey Davis, MA, Lecturer, Psychology [00:00:01] All right, everybody, thank you for staying after class for this meeting. I invited you guys here because I noticed that you've been struggling a little bit in the first half of the semester. And I really want to focus on the final project, because as you may have noticed, the class is set up so that even if you're struggling a little bit in the first half, you still have a chance to get your grade up by doing well on this final project. And so we're going to review that today. So let's go over what the assignment was. I asked you to interview three people who were employed in the field that you would like to work in, summarize the interviews, and then apply three of the concepts that we learned in class. One has to be biological, one has to be cognitive, and the other has to be social. And then describe how those concepts are connected to the profession that you chose, okay? Yes.

Student [00:00:56] Okay, so I chose engineering, and I know you said to go for two days and do, like, three interviews. I actually stayed for a week and a half, and I interviewed six of the engineers and the office manager, the billing team, and human resources, because I know in class you said to do that, but then you didn't say it today, so I wasn't sure. So I don't know, did I do what you were looking for?

Lindsey Davis, MA [00:01:29] Yeah, wow, I'm amazed that you did all of those interviews. You're really not taking any chances this time. Great job. Sounds great. Does anyone else have anything that they want to . . . Yes.

Tim, Student [00:01:41] Well, I spent a couple of days at a doctor's office and something that I noticed was that people who were parents said that they were more stressed. But I'm having trouble identifying if that's social, cognitive, or biological. I was hoping maybe you could help me with that.

Lindsey Davis, MA [00:01:56] Okay, that's a good question. Is there anyone who wants to help Tim out on that? Yeah.

Student [00:02:00] Well, actually, mine was kind of similar. It was a salon that had just opened and had a really busy schedule for everyone, so they said that was a source of stress. I thought I would write about how stress affects the brain and body. I put it as biological.

Lindsey Davis, MA [00:02:13] That sounds good. Great. Does anyone else have a question? Yes.

Student [00:02:19] Can I copy this?

Lindsey Davis, MA [00:02:22] Does anybody else have any questions?
