

Common Challenges & Misconceptions

Kenjuana McCray, EdD; Lead Program Coordinator; Arts & Humanities Program; Fayetteville Technical Community College [00:00:00]

We do work with helping the students to understand how sociology is applied to their everyday lives and the way that they think. We even have it in our Chapter 1 in sociology, we talk about how sociology, you'll actually see other disciplines. Actually in sociology, we talk about how you'll see political science, you'll see some psychology, you'll actually see some aspects of history. It's all married and into one course. And you will see this information. And again, we work with how you can apply that to your education. We talk about the social institution of education. A lot of people have kids in school, and it kind of helps you see how ways that you can be more active in society, ways that you can be more active in your children's education. So again, just taking it and showing them how this actually applies to the real life, real life situations.